The regression results provide information about the relationship between the dependent variable (Age.at.App.Submission) and various independent variables. Here are some key points to interpret the results:

Coefficients: Intercept (32.03): The estimated average age at application submission when all other variables are zero.

Degree:

Master's: For every one-unit increase in holding a Master's degree, the average age decreases by approximately 9.29 units.

MS: The effect is a decrease of approximately 5.98 units.

PhD: The effect is a decrease of approximately 7.05 units.

Have_You_Ever_Failed (0.87): For every one-unit increase in the variable "Have_You_Ever_Failed," the average age increases by 0.87 units.

Program_ASE:

Data Science: The effect is an increase of approximately 0.44 units.

Electrical and Computer Engineering: The effect is a decrease of approximately 0.63 units.

Sex (0.21): Males have an average age that is approximately 0.21 units higher than females.

Entry_Term: Various categories: The coefficients represent the estimated change in average age compared to the reference category.

Statistical Significance: Significance is indicated by the p-values associated with each coefficient. Variables with small p-values (typically < 0.05) are considered statistically significant. In the results, most variables are statistically significant (indicated by the asterisks).

Model Fit: Multiple R-squared: Represents the proportion of the variance in the dependent variable explained by the model. In this case, around 13.15% of the variance in age is explained.

Adjusted R-squared: Takes into account the number of predictors in the model. Adjusted R-squared is slightly lower.

F-statistic: Tests the overall significance of the model. A small p-value (< 0.05) indicates that at least one variable in the model is significant. Here, the p-value is $< 2.2\text{e-}16$, suggesting overall significance.

Residuals: Residuals represent the differences between observed and predicted values.
